INTRODUCTION

Sufism is a living spiritual path which found its origins long ago in mystical experiences in a desert environment. This walking retreat offers us an opportunity to experience how the vast emptiness and silence of the desert connects us with our own inner silence. As we walk into the desert, we are invited to leave behind our attachments, preoccupations and excessive activity, and orient ourselves to Presence.

This walking retreat is open to anyone with a spiritual outlook on life. The main language will be English, translations into French, Dutch and German will be available.

The retreat programme will consist of Sufi meditative practices and will be facilitated by Karim and Elmer, two senior retreat leaders from the Sufi Way. Amongst other practices, there will be silent and singing meditations, zikr, evenings of poetry and story-telling.

The trek in the desert will be led by Zineb, a professional guide with a deep knowledge of the Moroccan desert. She will bring with her a team of experienced camel drivers and other staff, such as a cook. The camels will carry our luggage, our food and equipment such as tents.

YOUR PURPOSE

BEFORE THE TREK: We recommend that you spend some time between now and the quest contemplating your purpose in undertaking this journey. We have found in our own experience that the clearer and more articulate we are about our intentions, the more powerful and profound the retreat will be. Stay curious about what this journey can mean to you. The more sincere your explorations are now, the deeper your realization will be later on.

DURING THE TREK: We suggest that you can more easily reach a state of inner silence by avoiding superfluous discussions and by becoming more aware of your thoughts, feelings and sensations in the moment. To this end, we will ask you to leave your technological equipment – mobile phones, cameras - behind at the guest house. One of the participants will make photographs and videos for everyone.

A wide-angle photograph of a caravan in a vast, sandy desert under a clear blue sky. In the foreground, a person in a black thobe stands near two camels. Further back, a line of camels, some with riders and others carrying colorful packs, stretches across the dunes. The scene is peaceful and captures the essence of a traditional desert trek.

We will follow the sanitary measures applicable at the time
